IWA Seeking $1 Hour Hike

The International Woodworkers of America will seek an across-the-board wage increase of $1 an hour in negotiations with the coast forest industry.

The wage proposal was agreed to Sunday at the conclusion of the union's wage and contract conference in Vancouver.

Details of other proposals were to be made public late today.

The proposed wage increase represents a 26.8 per cent hike, raising the base rate to $4.72 an hour.

The industry's chief negotiator, John Billings of Forest Industrial Relations, said he would make no statement until he sees the full contract proposals.

The current contract, which covers 29,000 workers and more than 100 companies, expires June 15. It covers workers in logging, sawmills, plywood mills and a number of other woodworking operations, but not pulp and paper mills.

The IWA has about 2,000 members on southern Vancouver Island, including B.C. Forest Products, the major private employer in Greater Victoria.

Bargaining Plan Vetoed

Education Minister Donald Brothers today rejected proposals for regional bargaining on teacher salaries made by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

BCSTA president Jack Smedley said he is disappointed with results of a 2½-hour meeting with Brothers and education department staff.

The association was seeking changes in proposed legislation requiring a referendum on teacher salaries which exceed provincial fixed guidelines, currently set at 6.5 per cent.

Smedley said his delegation outlined three alternatives to the government plan. These were:

- Separation of the province into five bargaining regions;
- Using the same regions with unresolved disputes settled by a government-appointed agency, either the B.C. Mediation Commission or some other new body;
- Regional bargaining within government-fixed guidelines.

Brandt Invited

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir's office said today she has invited Chancellor Willy Brandt to become the first German head of state to visit Israel.

Royal Salute

Strikers Brawl

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Britain's nationwide coal miners' strike entered its fifth week today and erupted into brawls as picketing miners clashed with police outside a giant coke depot.

Partial Injunction For Docks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House of Representatives labor subcommittee voted today to authorize a partial 60-day injunction against the United States West Coast dock strike.

The subcommittee voted 5 to 1 to allow a major part of the strike to continue but to allow a court, upon petition from the attorney-general, to halt strikes affecting shipments of military and agricultural cargoes and shipments to and from Hawaii.

The subcommittee rejected on a 5-to-3 vote emergency strike legislation requested by President Nixon.

Speedy End Near For Diet Pills?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. food and drug commissioner Charles C. Edwards hinted strongly today the government may be on the verge of banning widely popular diet pills as dangerous and virtually worthless.

"We're not sure any of these drugs are any good at treating obesity," Edwards said.

"Our approach may be to label the drug for short-term use in obesity only for those patients who do not respond to other treatment, and who do respond to this form of treatment during a short-term trial."

Flying and skiing . . .

. . . Yikes! Something's going wrong . . .

. . . Well, back to the old drawing board

Although this attempt by Jerry Johnston to become a winged man on skis appears to end in utter disaster, it was still a victory of sorts. Johnston won the first prize in the Sky Schuss contest at the weekend at Talisman Ski Resort north of Toronto. The distance he travelled in his home-made contraption was 36 feet eight inches. His effort won him $150 but all that was left of his "wings" at the end was the tall section and a few scraps of wood (lower picture).

But Pierre Gariepy, deputy director of Quebec prisons, said Sunday night that more than 90 per cent of supervisory personnel had remained on the job.

The walkout, called for 5 p.m. Sunday at a day-long meeting of 800 members of the Provincial Peace Officers Association, spread quickly across the province.

Guards, joined by autoroute policemen, game wardens and highway inspectors, all association members, were streaming to this city, 75 miles east of Montreal.

By Sunday evening, more than 1,500 men of the 2,500-member association were at a meeting hall here but a government spokesman said order was being maintained in the jails. A few guards did not join the strike.

Leopold Legros, president of the brotherhood of senior prison personnel, urged supervisory personnel to leave their posts and come to the Drummondville meeting. The guards earlier rejected his proposal that supervisors remain to insure minimum surveillance.

But Pierre Gariepy, deputy director of Quebec prisons, said Sunday night that more than 90 per cent of supervisory personnel had remained on the job.

The association has been without a contract since the previous one expired last July and they charge the government has not been bargaining in good faith.

He said supervisors have been supplied with living-in arrangements in preparation for an extended walkout.

Environmental Teach-In Set

Oak Bay Senior Secondary School students will hold a teach-in on environmental control and pollution Feb. 29, it was announced today.

The teach-in, entitled Ecologue '72, will be held at the school and is sponsored by Students for Environmental Rescue (SFERE), the school organization devoted to the solution of ecological problems.

More than 70 persons are expected to participate in panel discussions before an audience of 1,100 students.

Dave Anderson (Esquimalt-Saanich MP) will open the sessions and among the guests will be: Dr. Pat McGeer, B.C. Liberal party leader; Dave Barrett, NDP party leader for B.C.; Robert Williams, David Broussard, Liberal MLA for North Vancouver (Capilano); Dr. Scott Wallace, PC member for Oak RAY; Mayors Peter Pollen, Hugh Curtis, Frances Ellford and Art Young, and Frank Richter, minister of mines.

A full school day will be devoted to three sessions, each consisting of 20 panels to be located in various classrooms. Questions will be raised in subject areas as a guide for a five-minute talk from each panel member.

SFERE sponsoring teacher Justus Havelaar said: "It will help students to become more acutely aware of both the problems and the ways in which individuals can work effectively towards possible ecological solutions."

Panel topics include: air pollution, forests and parks, pesticides and wildlife, pollution politics, population and resources, power generation and use, transportation, urban and suburban planning, water pollution, and waste disposal and litter. There will be slide and film presentations and some discussions will be video-taped.

SFERE co-presidents are students Marshall McCall, Ken McCarter and Ivor McMahan.

BIKE PATH MEETING

Residents who live near Oak Bay's proposed bicycle path will meet members of the Oak Bay Youth Commission Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal hall.

Members of the commission, who hope the path will be the first of several on southern Vancouver Island, will present their viewpoints to the residents. Many are opposed.

The path, which is to stretch from Cedar Hill Cross Road through Henderson Park to Woodburn, is to be partially financed through federal local initiatives fund money.

Residents complain that the path will cause noise, reduce property values and increase traffic.

One letter in favor has been received from a taxpayer who does not live on Woodburn.

He is Lt.-Col. O. R. Browne of 1733 St. Ann.

He writes that the path is another tangible demonstration that your administration continues to give cognizance to those little things which are really meaningful to the people."

Council has tabled action on the path until after Tuesday's meeting and has also called for studies and traffic counts to be made.

BARGAINING

Smedley emphasized that the second alternative would still retain the option for the public to vote on overall school district budgets which exceeded 108 per cent of the educational unit. This alternative would simplify voting possibilities contained in government legislation.

He said this would put school boards in an impossible situation.

Smedley apologized for having told the press Sunday he was optimistic the government would respond to his demands. He said Brothers told him he thought the public would accept this.

Smedley also pointed out the government proposal might mean voters would approve a teacher salary increase in January, forcing an over-all budget referendum later in the spring, which might be rejected.

The government's throne speech at the beginning of the current legislative session mentioned unspecified changes in labor legislation. There has been no speculation thus far that the changes could include restrictions on the closed shop or union shop.

CHANGES SOUGHT

In a two-page information sheet, the Right to Work Association of Vancouver Island, a group of non-union contractors formed after building unions announced an organizing drive, seeks support for legislative changes to:

• Restrict "support" clauses in union contracts;

This would include protective clauses regarding picket lines, hot cargo and working with non-union persons.

• No person to be required to join, to quit, a union in order to be hired and no employee need continue union membership as a condition of employment.

Asked what the association would do now that the government had indicated a firm stand, Smedley said "it's going to be legislation that we're going to have to live with."

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway will get a new name and $25 million from the provincial government this year.

The money will be invested in the government-owned railway which will be renamed the British Columbia Railway.

Bills to give the money and change the name were introduced in the legislature by Premier Bennett Friday following his budget speech.

The $25 million will bring to $195 million B.C. taxpayers' investment in shares of the railway. All shares are held by the government.

In addition, the railway's borrowing authority will be increased by an additional $100 million to $340 million to allow for further capital expansion.

In another budget move, Premier Bennett announced that further $500 million in authorized debt will be granted to B.C. Hydro and Power Authority to provide for expansion in the next few years.

Hydro's new borrowing limit will be $1.75 billion.

Poll: Viet War a Mistake

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Looking back on developments since the U.S. entered the Vietnam war, most citizens in both the U.S.A. and Canada are of the opinion that the U.S. made an initial mistake in sending troops to that country. As President Nixon attempts to "wind down" the war, 51 per cent of the American people, and 51 per cent of Canadians say that it was an error to enter the war in the first place.

While, inevitably, indecision is higher here than in the U.S., in both countries the ratio is about two to one on the side that the U.S. should never have been involved in Vietnam.

In Canada, as education increases, so does belief that the Vietnam war was an error for the U.S. This level is 46 per cent among those with public school training, 51 per cent among those with high school or technical school backgrounds, and 59 per cent among those who have attended university. An interesting contrast in U.S. opinion is that a level of 60 per cent who believe sending troops was a mistake, is maintained through all educational levels.

The question, put to a national sample of adults in both countries:

"In view of the developments since the U.S. entered the fighting in Vietnam, do you think the U.S. made a mistake in sending troops to Vietnam?"

No	Yes Mistake	A Mistake	Undecided
CANADA	51%	27%	22%
U.S.A.	61	28	11
Public school	46	23	31
High school	51	29	20
University	59	27	14

Canadians have been consistent in their criticisms of the Vietnam war. In May, 1970, about a third of the adults (36%) said their opinion of the U.S. would go up if they withdrew all troops from Vietnam in the ensuing few months, while only 13% said that their opinion would go down. Again in 1970, the largest segment of the Canadian people (31%) believed that the U.S. should withdraw its troops, a level which rose to 41% a year later. In November, 1970, a majority of Canadians (53%) said they had a clear idea of what the Vietnam war was all about, the big majority of them saying that the U.S. was fighting to end communism in Vietnam.

Vietnam Fighting Heaviest of Year

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces battled the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong today and Sunday at a dozen points. It was one of the heaviest periods of action this year, military spokesmen said.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 77 Communist command troops killed in the scattered fighting, while 20 South Vietnamese troops were reported killed and 55 wounded.

The heaviest fighting raged through the swamps of the U Minh forest at the southern end of the Mekong Delta, and on the Ca Mau peninsula to the east. In five clashes in that region, 51 Communist command troops and 15 South Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed and 40 government troops were wounded.

Along the eastern end of the so-called demilitarized zone, South Vietnamese marines reported another nine North Vietnamese killed and one marine wounded.

No Line-Up at the Bus Stop

One of the first of Mr. Bennett's budgetary tidbits to be nibbled at by the municipalities is the bill to enable the provincial government to subsidize municipally — or regionally — owned street transit services to the extent of half their annual operating deficit, including debt charges. The bus services of Vancouver and Victoria have been notorious money-losers for many years and one of the nightmares of the governments of the two cities has been that the provincial government might make them take over the transit operations.

The cities, as cities, need the public transportation services. The problem is that too many citizens, as citizens, don't need them except when the family cars break down or snow makes driving difficult. The result is that lack of adequate patronage leads to schedule cuts, which lead to still less patronage, and so on. And the annual losses pile up. Clearly some revolutionary change in the whole scheme of transit must be achieved — parking bans for private cars, parking areas outside the city centre with shuttle bus services, wholly new types of buses for wholly new uses, phone-for-a-ride service, or some other drastic solution. But until the urban bus service can be put on at least a break-even basis financially, the civic governments want no part of the business.

Acceptance of Mr. Bennett's offer to shoulder half the annual losses doesn't carry much appeal, since the assumption is that the municipalities will shoulder the other half. And already local governments are protesting their lack of revenues to carry out the work they must do.

But Mr. Bennett insinuated two other aspects of the situation. He noted in his budget address the

The Doctor Holds the Key

TORONTO — In an age where the cost of health care is almost entirely borne by government — which is to say, the tax-paying public — the persistence of medical paternalism is one of life's not so minor anomalies. "Doctor knows best" is the reigning dictum even in deciding how the public may obtain the services it is paying for.

It may be thought, for example, that when Ontario residents pay out some $800 millions a year in premiums and taxes to operate the province's hospitals, they would have the right to enter them for care and treatment when they are ill. And indeed the Ontario Public Hospitals Act says that they do.

But that's just a sop to democracy. The legislation says the hospitals may not refuse admission but the regulations passed by the government pursuant to the legislation say no one shall be admitted except on the order of a doctor who is a member of the hospital's medical staff. And in the great majority of actual cases, it is the regulations which govern: you only get "admitted" to an Ontario hospital if your doctor has been appointed to that hospital's staff. You go where he has admitting "privileges"; conversely, if you want or are forced to go to a hospital where he does not have admitting privileges, you must find a doctor who does — which is an interesting commentary on a patient's right to choose his own doctor, something the medical profession has always insisted upon.

Growing Problem

This situation is no great problem in smaller communities of only one hospital and relatively few doctors but it is a real and growing problem in the metropolitan areas, where many doctors find they cannot get appointed to the staffs of those hospitals which are most conveniently located for their practices and patients. When two such doctors in the Toronto area broke the code of silence to complain publicly last summer, the Minister of Health appointed a committee to inquire into the whole question of hospital admissions and doctors' privileges and recommend appropriate reforms.

The inquiry was a golden opportunity to come to grips with medical paternalism, but the committee muffed it. Perhaps one should say, since the committee consisted of one lawyer, one lady from the Consumers Association of Canada, and three doctors, that the opportunity was allowed to slip away. In any event, the committee managed to dispose of the "open hospital," where all qualified doctors would be equally eligible to admit and treat their patients, in a few quick paragraphs in its report.

Who is in control?

enough to permit a judgment and therefore, the committee concluded negatively, "we are not prepared to say that a hospital should not have control over the number of members of its staff."

All the committee was prepared to say was that the present controls should be somewhat freed from the grip which the medical staffs of hospitals have over them. It recommended this be done by reminding the Boards of Trustees or Governors who theoretically run the hospitals that they are in charge, and by instituting new procedures for handling applications from doctors who wish staff appointment.

This term "staff appointment," of course, is highly ambiguous. It does not mean, except in rare instances, that a doctor who is on the staff of a hospital is problems of cities in coping with pollution and parking and traffic congestion. Solutions to these problems must cost the cities money. Therefore, if operating a viable bus service would help to alleviate the pollution and traffic problems, it would presumably reduce the cost of these problems to the city. That seems to be a nice little worm on Mr. Bennett's hook which hasn't yet drawn much attention. (The situation in Berlin comes to mind, where the city fathers concluded it would be cheaper to finance free bus service in some areas than to continue constructing costly freeways and other traffic aids for burgeoning private cars.)

On the other hand, in his later comments on the matter, Mr. Bennett threw out a similar worm to B.C. Hydro, when he suggested that since the transit business was costing the Crown corporation money every year, the management might be sufficiently anxious to get rid of it to the municipalities that it would offer to sell at a most tempting price.

At the moment, it seems that anything over $1 would not even be considered by the potential purchasers — in fact it is more likely that a substantial dowry would be demanded along with the still unbussed bride.

Adding further complications is the fact that any such takeover in Victoria — or even Vancouver — would have to be on an inter-municipal or Regional District basis. And it may be taken for granted that the municipalities adjacent to the city centres will be even less enthusiastic about owning a transit service than the cities themselves.

It is clear, however, that a regionally-administered operation is the only practicable answer to street transit. It is a local service which basically should be financed locally and not at the expense of the province as a whole. The catch is to devise a street transportation service that can be economically viable — one which can be so attractive to users that the revenue problem would be solved, or nearly so.

Private car owners might be lured to use buses because they were so reasonably priced and convenient. Or they might be coerced into using them by making private car operation a misery of choked streets and expensive parking.

It could come to that — but local governments would be well advised to try the first solution first. Somewhere in the world there must be an expert, even a high-priced one, with the answer.

Boomerang

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal M.P. David Anderson has drawn attention to one of the deficiencies in major development programs launched in this country. As chairman of the special Commons committee on environmental pollution, he points out that a joint federal-provincial report on the environmental impact of the proposed James Bay power scheme came too late to be of any use in evaluating the project.

This is not an isolated incident in Canada—or in other parts of the world, for that matter. Too frequently authorities build their dams for hydro purposes and then, after construction, find to their dismay that they have created significant new problems.

Mr. Anderson's comments serve to underline the error of such action and to emphasize the need for the longer look. Before we throw the boomerang, we should determine what it may hit on the return.

A paid employee of the hospital; it simply means he may admit his patients and supervise their care.

The way it works now is that a doctor gets "on staff" by applying to the hospital board and his application is considered by the hospital's medical staff or medical advisory committee — that is, by doctors already appointed. The board is not bound to accept the staff's recommendation, but reversals are rare. A more effective closed shop situation would be hard to imagine.

"There is the inevitable suspicion of conflict of interest," the Committee conceded, "where the medical staff of a hospital determines the number of doctors that may have privileges at the hospital. Where a doctor seeking appointment to a hospital is informed there is no room for him and the decision is made by a body composed in part of doctors engaged in that specialty and enjoying privileges in that hospital, there may reasonably remain with the applicant the suspicion that this application was refused for selfish reasons."

Proposals for Applicants

The committee's solution was to have a standardized procedure for staff appointments, requiring that applicants be told within 60 days of the medical staff's recommendation (procrastination is now the easiest method of discrimination), that unsuccessful applicants be given full reasons for their rejection, that hospital boards not consider adverse recommendations without a hearing from the applicant if he requests it, and that a Hospital Appeal Board be set up to hear appeals from the decisions of the boards. This five-member tribunal, in the Committee's view, would include three doctors.

Similar procedures would apply in the case of doctors already on staff whose privileges are suspended, curtailed or cancelled. In all cases involving incompetence, negligence or misconduct, the hospitals would be required to advise the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the self-governing licensing body. Incredible though it may seem, it appears that such reports are not required in all cases under current law.

Perhaps the most that can be said about the Committee's report, which seems certain to be implemented by the government, is that some progress is better than none. The Ontario Hospital Association has reservations about a doctor-dominated appeal tribunal. The doctors presumably are delighted: the report is precisely what the Ontario Medical Association submitted to the committee. To coin a phrase, it's just what the doctor ordered.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

School Costs

In your issue of February 1 you published a letter by a correspondent who signed as "Concerned Citizen" rather than appending his signature to his comments on the school vote.

One would wonder why the necessity of using a nom-de-plume in support of such a worthy cause as children's education, unless the writer had a direct financial interest in the result of the proposed referendum.

While he extorts the Minister of Education, it is significant that despite the support the B.C. Teachers Federation has attracted from other organized groups they are not optimistic that their salary demands will be approved by taxpayers on March 11.

The Greater Victoria School Board trustees also believe the proposed budget will not meet with approval in the referendum.

Surely, then, one must conclude that the Minister of Education has indeed interpreted the wishes of the majority on this issue, and the stand he has taken is based on true democratic principles.

It is to be hoped that the government of this province will resist the pressures of all organized groups who seek exorbitant wage and salary increases which are primarily responsible for the inflation and unemployment which plague this country today. — F. E. Wright, 993 Karen Cresc.

Sewer Issue

With reference to the "View Royal Sewer issue" item in your paper on January 29:

In my opinion it illustrates the writer's very limited knowledge on this subject and also the intense propaganda campaign bordering on hysteria of that segment of our society who wish to railroad a particular sewer scheme through before effective planning and zoning can be evaluated to control the resultant development. Such highly "colored" accounts do nothing to enhance the credibility of your local news.

I cannot deal with all the questionable comment by your writer in a brief letter to the editor. However, I would like to make a few points.

1. To present this issue as being simply "for or against sewers" is entirely incorrect.

2. Had the "study," which was recently turned down in a referendum, included in its terms of reference the consideration of alternative programs related to future planning and zoning, it would probably have received approval.

3. The alleged health hazard should be properly defined. There has frequently been a much higher incidence of hepatitis in other (sewered) areas.

4. Many people in View Royal realize there is a problem (though often exaggerated) and that appropriate corrective measures should be taken. However, some of our public officials had better take their heads out of the sand and realize this program should be for the benefit of local residents and society at large. We do not like being railroaded (or tricked) into an expensive and environmentally inferior course of action which we feel is mainly for the benefit of the lobby.

5. When a sufficient number of our public officials realize we want the opportunity to consider alternative programs (which may include sewage collection) then we can hope for some intelligent progress. For instance, a superior local treatment plant could cost much less than the amount we are supposed to pay as our share of the Macmillan trunk and outfall. — A View Royal Resident.

an attitude like theirs and others like them.

Most born Canadians know we are not perfect; yet we can ask ourselves, what nation is?

Your remarks on the ethnic groups again are well taken. May I point out as an example a business place on Burnside, a Chinese immigrant who has yet to be more proficient in our language, with a wonderful sense of humor and a pride in displaying seven of our national emblems uncluttered by any other, and doing business that required expansion.

Mr. Editor, how can anyone not look up to these types of people? Integration, I think, gives a better understanding and meaning than a conglomeration of separate groups.

If a country is worth living in, allegiance is to be expected. — Len Skilton, 4068 Grange Road.

Cycling

In the matter of a bicycle path for Vancouver Island, as proposed by Mr. Frank Ney (S.C.—Nanaimo) in the House, it is possible that the honorable member was carried away by his enthusiasm for the project or that he might have been reported incorrectly, but someone was in error in saying that: "In Europe cycling paths have been in fashion for hundreds of years."

The bicycle was developed in Scotland c.1839 from the velocipede, a machine operated by the thrust of the rider's feet upon the ground. By the 1880s development included the larger front wheel, penny-farthing, with hollow steel frame, ball-bearings, tangential steel spokes. Then came the safety bicycle, bone-shaker, with equal sized wheels and sprocket chain drive. It displaced other models following the introduction of the pneumatic tire (c.1888). Later improvements included three-wheel, coaster and hand brakes until today we have advanced to 8-speed and 10-speed gears.

The cycling fad in the '80s and '90s stimulated road construction, as the automobile has done in the 20th century.

To detract from the proposal of Mr. Ney, the foregoing is designed just to keep the record straight.

As the automobile population continues to expand, to eliminate some of the hazards of cycling these paths are going to have to become essential; but what of the pedestrian? Is he to be relegated to footpaths in the bush to follow in the footsteps of his ancestors?

Perhaps Mr. Ney would like to go one step further! — Pedestrian.

Many thanks to the local merchants, friends, and restaurant proprietors who helped to make the evening a success. — W. D. Buckle, 1765 Rockland Ave.

Fluoridation

The confident hopes of many Victoria voters, in their newly elected mayor, must have received a severe jolt at his recent suggestion that fluoridation of our water supply be reconsidered.

At a time when so many are unemployed and many living below the poverty level, when we are so hard pressed to finance badly needed hospital services, pay teachers, firemen and policemen and fund anti-drug programs, it seems illogical to even consider such a financially wasteful exercise.

It is conceded that fluoridation of drinking water is only beneficial to children up to the age of approximately 10 years. According to latest available statistics this group represents only 18 per cent of the total population of Greater Victoria. Estimation of the water consumed by this age group is said to be 1-20th of one per cent of all water passed through the water works. If we considered that the bulk of the water supply is used to flush toilets, take baths, and showers, wash dishes, clothes, windows, walls, floors, cars, water lawns and gardens, clean streets and put out fires, this method is sadly lacking intelligence.

Yet another aspect: while we are daily being urged to prevent pollution, we may soon be asked to decide whether or not we wish to add sodium fluoride (a component of a fatal nerve gas developed for chemical warfare and also used in some pesticides) to our water, sewers, streams and rivers.

Apart from the moral implications of mass medication, the public, who have never been offered an alternative method for providing dental protection for our young. The financing of oral fluoride treatment for pre-schoolers and an annual application to the teeth of school aged children upon parental request, would undoubtedly provide a more controlled situation, possibly, at much less cost, even though it could leave the aluminum companies looking for another source of disposal for their waste product. — Mary MacKenzie, 1935 Runnymede Ave.

Disgrace

The January 27 edition of the University of Victoria, B.C. Martlet is indeed a disgrace.

A hideous, poorly drawn, full-page cartoon derides the Christian religion and in the process uses filthy four-letter words fit only for the gutter and not for students presumably in higher education.

We, the public, who allow part of our earnings to support this public university are certainly wasting our money if we use it to support an institution that attacks the only spiritual and high-minded source left in our civilization: namely, Christianity.

It is about time we looked into the university to see if it is really worth its high price. After all one doesn't need an expensive university to learn ideas and words any tramp knows on skid row. — Robert Jackson, R.R. 4, Victoria.

Come on Hanoi, It's the Chance of a Lifetime

It is now obvious that the North Vietnamese are not going to get a peace settlement unless they make allowance for the ancient American concept of "face."

In the American culture, loss of "face" is among the very worst things that can happen to a person; it is in a class with having your income-tax return audited.

When an American loses "face," everybody laughs at him and says he "has egg on his chin." When this happens, the rigid American code of honor makes cruel demands. The only way an American who has lost face can atone for the disgrace to his ancestors is by giving up hamburgers for 40 days.

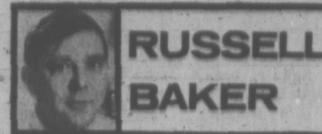

Rather than accept this fate, Americans will go to any extreme to save face. Knowing this, smart nations never put Americans in a position where their face may be lost. Instead, they graciously surrender any momentary advantage they may have, and let the grateful Americans in return do wonderful things for them.

The North Vietnamese, unfortunately, seem unable to grasp this simple principle for dealing with Americans. As President Nixon's speech the other night made clear, they show no sensitivity at all for American face.

The fact is that the United States is eager to get out of the war and will do so if offered a few face-saving concessions from Hanoi. Hanoi doesn't even have to surrender. All we ask is that it quit fighting, return our prisoners of war and stand at attention when "The Star Spangled Banner" is played.

Hanoi seems to think these are unacceptable terms, but this is probably because it does not understand how much the United States is prepared to do in return for having its face saved. In fact, the Administration has a full program of concessions it will make immediately if North Vietnam accepts President Nixon's Peace terms. First, Hanoi will be given a franchise in the National Football League. A domed stadium seating 80,000 persons, equipped with copper gutters to carry off the monsoon downpours, will be built with capital provided by three Texas billionaires who have dedicated their lives to propagating the philosophy, "Make football, not war." Second, Billy Graham will lead a thirty-day crusade in Haiphong, Vietname, Liang Prabang or any other major city of Hanoi's choice.

RUSSELL

Third, President Nixon will ask Congress for a special supplemental appropriation to make it possible for Hanoi to obtain Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise installations at seven-mile intervals from the demilitarized zone to the Chinese border.

Fourth, Professor Henry Kissinger will make a highly publicized secret visit to Hanoi.

Fifth, on the day the fighting stops, President Nixon will make a telephone call to the locker room of the North Vietnamese Central Committee and congratulate Premier Pham Van Dong on finishing No. 2.

If Hanoi were willing to swallow its pride and surrender, of course, Washington would show its gratitude in far more substantial ways. As Germany and Japan attest in their quarter-of-a-century progress from surrender to triumph, the road to the championship begins with an unconditional surrender to Uncle Sam.

Precisely what the United States might do in return for an unconditional surrender is uncertain, but there is some sentiment here for settling Hanoi up in the steel industry on a scale that would permit it to dominate the American market within the decade.

The livelier prospect is for a vast aid program to the North Vietnamese bicycle industry, which has shown great capacity during the war, and which, with sufficient American capital, could probably take over the American bicycle market within three years.

Hanoi's future could be bright, if its leaders but saw the light: Even a Disneyland is not out of the question.

Kremlin Sets the Limits

By ROBERT G. KAISER

rise to a theory, popular in several of the biggest western chanceries in Moscow, that the Soviet leaders are reminding their people that talk of detente in foreign policy does not mean any loosening of controls at home. It is a plausible but untenable theory.

One westerner with many years' experience says it is wrong to look for such an elaborate explanation. "Even in the frosty days under Khrushchev, such things occasionally happened, just to remind people that the KGB

was still in business," he said.

Curiously, a very different signal has probably made a much greater impression on Moscow intellectuals this winter — a signal from a brilliant movie called "Andrei Rublev."

This film, made six years ago by Andrei Tarkovsky, was shown with great success in Paris, but was banned here until December. It is a dark and gloomy chronicle of the life of Rublev, an icon painter of the 15th century. In a style reminiscent of Ingmar Bergman at his best, Tarkovsky draws a vivid and woefully depressing picture of Medieval Russia, its cruel princes and wild tartar invaders.

All these events coincide with an increased number of supplications to the party faithful to maintain their vigilance against subversive forces.

'Keep Vigilant'

Two other Soviet intellectuals identified with political non-conformity were attacked in the Soviet press: Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, the writer, and Valery N. Chalidze, a physicist and an organizer of the unofficial committee for human rights. Both attacks were unusual. Solzhenitsyn has been ignored by the Soviet press for most of a year, and Chalidze had hitherto been immune from public criticism.

All these events coincide with an increased number of supplications to the party faithful to maintain their vigilance against subversive forces.

The crackdown plus the vigilance campaign has given via, a hint that it still troubles them.

There is much in the film that would trouble an orthodox apparatchik: its negative view of life in medieval Russia, its numerous references to the arbitrary and silly use of state power. Rublev's tormented debate with himself about an artist's role in society.

Unstilled Film

Perhaps most troubling, the film is an individual and unusual work, a piece of creativity unstilled by party line or official dicta. Muscovites have been flocking to see it, and the film is said to be opening all over the country.

How does one movie — or one small wave of arrests and harassments — affect the spirit of a Soviet citizen? For an outsider living here, that is the most intriguing but most unanswerable of questions.

The party ideologists apparently fear something akin to the "Prague spring" of 1968, but what could bring that sort of phenomenon to the Soviet Union? What are the signals that a Soviet intellectual feels most strongly, that can make him change his ways of thinking and living?

Recent Soviet history suggests that the one really powerful signal is terror. Stalin kept "foreign" influences out of the Soviet Union by enforcing appalling penalties on those who fell under their sway. Soviet art, music and literature shrivelled to the point of death under Stalin, because artists were afraid to challenge the official standards.

The terror ended in the early 1950s and by the late 1950s the poetry readings which gave birth to the dissident movement had begun. Pasternak finished "Doctor Zhivago," Solzhenitsyn published "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich." Voznesensky and Yevtushenko brought life back into Russian poetry, a few directors partially revived the Russian theatre and movies.

The mood has relaxed and tightened in turn, but Stalinism has not reappeared. New boundaries of permissible behavior have been drawn, far outside the tiny circle imposed by Stalin (though still woefully short of anything that would be acceptable in the West).

Soviet intellectuals have occupied the new territory that has been opened to them. "Andrei Rublev" seems proof that the Russian creative impulse is alive and strong, if hidden much of the time. It is hard to see how the political police could restore the old sterility and silence — unless the Stalinist terror was restored too.

The KGB and the government can control the most obvious manifestations of intellectual life. They can ban books, movies and plays, jam foreign broadcasts. By threatening to deprive people of jobs and privileges, they can also control open expressions of unacceptable opinions. They are doing all of these regularly. But this is not the same as the complete subservience of the intellectual class, which the terror did maintain.

Without complete subservience, some degree of courageous (if foolishly) open disidence seems inevitable.

Outsiders Wooed

The Soviet government is courting other countries ardently, and shows every indication of a keen desire to be admired by outsiders. The tolerance of Solzhenitsyn and the decision to permit substantial Jewish emigration seem to be evidence that the Kremlin now responds to foreign opinion in a way Stalin would have laughed at.

None of this is liberalism. From a liberal point of view it may not even be hopeful. Soviet intellectuals may be willing to live within the current boundaries, permitted an occasional "Andrei Rublev" and their private frustrations, but nothing more.

Each year, no doubt, a few will be unwilling, will join the active dissidents, and will probably end in jail. There isn't even a hint that the great mass of citizens cares about censorship, foreign travel or civil rights.

Brezhnev and his colleagues may have achieved a new status quo — ahead of Stalin's, well behind Krushchev's at his most liberal, and by all appearances stable.

The Bagmen Cometh

By GEORGE BAIN

OTTAWA — It may not be the question uppermost in the minds of Canadians on a February morning, but let's ask it nevertheless: Why is it that political parties so often see the warts on the political system more clearly when they are out of office than when they are in?

There are schemes to which they are shaped with at least a half-thought to the effect they may have on sources of funds.

The same question as about campaign funds may be asked about legislation relating to conflicts of interest in government — another matter in which the government is entirely unimpeded, if it has the will to act.

No delegations are going to storm Parliament Hill if some move is taken to remove the bagman from politics.

There are difficulties, as the prime minister mentioned in that television interview, but they have not been allowed entirely to obstruct efforts at reform in other countries. The conclusion that anyone is left with is that the government, having the more effective leverage on sources of campaign funds — as governments usually do — is comfortable with the system as it is.

And yet this is a question that is more important in Canada than almost anywhere else because of the very high proportion of corporate givers which have foreign loyalties. Campaign contributors do not buy political parties — although they sometimes can command special treatment — but it is also true that they do not contribute to parties whose views they consider to be inimical to their interests.

Thus policies are extent shaped with at least a half-thought to the effect they may have on sources of funds.

The same question as about campaign funds may be asked about legislation relating to conflicts of interest in government — another matter in which the government is entirely unimpeded, if it has the will to act.

In June, 1969, the prime minister said — in the Commons — that the government hoped to decide that summer what reforms, if any, it would propose in the Senate and House of Commons and other acts, in the matter of conflicts of interest. It now seems a safe bet that this Parliament will expire with nothing done.

Although the number of directorships which some senators bring with them or acquire make them look a little insensitive, conflicts of interest rarely have been alleged, far less proved, in Canadian federal politics. That is not to say, however, that rules are not desirable; in fact, since they have been thought worth considering, it makes it the more remarkable that they have not been enacted.

The New Rundown Society

By J. B. PRIESTLY
New Statesman

I think we are now living in a new and peculiarly maddening kind of rundown society. The old kind, which has its place in literature, was inefficient but had a hazy charm of its own, like that of fine autumnal afternoon.

If it was always bringing delays, postponements, dreamy forgetfulness, that was because the machinery of social organization was slowed down or stopped by various human weaknesses. The train might be late because the station master further down the line had quarrelled with his wife.

The letters might not be delivered because the postman was drunk, having celebrated his brother's birthday. No reply came from the nearest bureaucrat because he was away from his office, moved by his passion for shooting duck.

This old kind of autumnal rundown society, with something profoundly feminine in it, turned up all over the place. It may be found in China and India, in the decaying Roman empire, in 19th-century Russian literature with its remote country houses and absurd small towns, and in Irish memoirs.

It would not do, of course; something more efficient and businesslike, with an eye on the clocks, was always on the way to take its place. Charm and the all-too-human style were not good enough. Even so, I could have endured such a society and might even have enjoyed it.

What I cannot enjoy, and indeed am finding it hard to endure, is our new kind of rundown society, which has about as much charm as a forgotten helping of lamb stew. It is not all-too-human but just idiotic.

And that is where efficient service ends. The station might be the one they come from in The Cherry Orchard with the welcome and the vodka left out. So that we will buy new cars and clutter up the MI, the old time-table has been ruthlessly slashed.

There are porters, because I have seen them together in the distance, looking like an unsuccessful pop group; but they rarely handle passengers' luggage. The lavatories have been taken away from the London platform. If there are dusty compartments with reading lamps without bulbs, we get them.

I tell you, we innocents are trapped in a new kind of rundown society.

As for our postal services, once our boast and pride, I have guessed the secret of their increasing imbecility. In the centre of them, behind the more and more machines doing less and less, there is a vast computer programmed by a malignant paranoid.

Sometimes while I am waiting for those first-class letters that take two days to come 100 miles, or those parcels that cost so much because you are paying a week's board-and-lodging for them, I seem to catch a glimpse of that lunatic and his machine in a green limelight and then seem to hear them cackling together. None of your social services here, man! You're in a Business Britain now!

The old rundown societies not only had charm and pleasant manners, they also had plenty of cheap booze, to keep everybody floating around.

Now we are running down at murderous charges — unless of course you are on an expense account, which I certainly am not.

Lawyer Slams Justice Quality

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS
B.C. (CP) — A Vancouver Island lawyer claims residents of many isolated areas of British Columbia are getting second-rate justice from the courts.

Vic Stephens of Courtenay told a meeting of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association Friday that in Northern Vancouver Island many cases are decided before the accused gets into court.

He charged that judges aren't fit to pass sentence, there are no pre-sentence reports and that many lay magistrates lack adequate legal training.

POOR JUSTICE

The administration of justice in rural areas of the province is shoddy compared to urban centres, he told a panel discussing police power and civil liberties.

Stephens said many in the legal profession, including the attorney-general's department, are aware of the poor justice offered in many outlying areas.

"I have seen strong communication and relationships between judges and the RCMP where the whole issue is decided before you get there..."

He singled out Port Hardy, Port Alice, Tahsis and Alert Bay as the worst areas on Northern Vancouver Island for poor administration of justice.

In Port Hardy, Stephens said pre-sentence reports are not available because no rehabilitation officer is provided by the provincial government.

However, he emphasized in an interview later that in most cases, the influence of the RCMP in sentences was not deliberate. He said it is a natural development... considering the size of communities and the close relationship that exists between the RCMP and the judges.

JUDGE AGREES

Roderick Haig-Brown, magistrate and judge in Campbell River for the past 30 years, said Saturday that what Stephens claims is essentially accurate.

"It came to my notice with in the last little while there are now more than 90 individuals on probation on the upper end of the Island," Haig-Brown said.

... in agreement

He has been told that there may be a probation officer assigned to the area within the next year to year and a half.

And Judge J. R. Caldwell, also of Campbell River, will in future be travelling on the upper island to sit on the more serious cases.

"We wouldn't suggest this is going to cure everything but it's a step in the right direction."

Haig-Brown said in defence of lay magistrates that it is almost impossible in isolated areas to develop the degrees of experience which goes into making good judgments.

"These men are appointed with no training which, in my opinion, could be given very easily by a short course at a university law school."

There is also great reluctance to provide adequate pay for people in such areas, he added.

By ED WALTERS
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Edward M. Roberts won the leadership of the Newfoundland Liberal party Saturday and became head of the strongest opposition in the provincial legislature since Confederation in 1949.

But the 31-year-old former health minister said there would be no immediate push for an election as long as Premier Frank Moores' Progressive Conservative government acts in the province's best interests.

"We said that we believed Newfoundland needed a period of political stability—that we would use our strength in the house to achieve this."

"Our responsibility is all the greater because we can defeat the government at any time."

Mr. Roberts, an unmarried lawyer who has never practised law, succeeded Joseph R. Smallwood, 71.

Mr. Smallwood retired after serving as party leader since he led Newfoundland into union with Canada.

His Liberal government resigned Jan. 18 after losing a court battle over a disputed seat won by the Conservatives in the Oct. 28 provincial election.

Mr. Smallwood left soon after casting his vote and was not present when the result was made known.

GETS 564 VOTES

Mr. Roberts received 564 of the 663 votes cast by delegates to the party's two-day leadership convention here.

Tom Burgess, former New Labrador Party leader returned in Labrador West in the Oct. 28 election who switched to the Liberals and entered the leadership race last week, got 82 votes.

Fourteen delegates voted for Rod Moores, a 22-year-old university student, and three votes went to Vincent Spencer, 44, a Windsor, Nfld., businessman.

An expected attempt to elect Mr. Burgess, 38 and Hugh Shea, who also joined the Liberals last week after being elected as a Conservative for St. John's, South, failed to materialize.

The switch by the two gave the Liberals 21 of the 42 legislature seats. The PCs hold 20 and one was left vacant by the resignation of a Liberal earlier this month.

'WE'LL WIN'

In a brief acceptance speech Mr. Roberts said:

"We'll rise and fight again and we'll win."

"Let's get to work. We can win this election when it comes."

In a speech before voting began, Mr. Roberts promised to work for greater unity between Newfoundland and Labrador and to encourage local processing of fish and minerals, both exported now as semi-finished products.

"I say—openly and honestly—that we have not done enough to make Labrador and Newfoundland one."

He said residents of the province's mainland territory felt they were being ignored.

"They are right."

BURGESS SWITCHED

A similar view has often been expressed by Mr. Burgess, who abandoned a promise made in November to support the PCs because he said Premier Moores was unwilling to pay special attention to Labrador's problems.

"We must ensure . . . that the harvest of our sea is processed in Newfoundland so that our people get the greatest possible benefit from these resources," Mr. Roberts said.

"We must ensure that our minerals give the maximum benefit to Newfoundlanders—that these are no longer just taken from the ground and sent elsewhere to be refined."

He also promised to make better use of the forests, many areas of which now are held by firms under timber rights originally granted 70 years ago.

"We can make more out of Newfoundland—and in the process make more out of Canada."

"But we will not do it until we rid ourselves of the idea that all our progress depends on Ottawa's help."

Weekend Accidents

Claim Seven Lives

At least seven persons died accidentally on the Prairies during the weekend. In Manitoba, Rebecca-Ann Vickery, 68, and Alberta Vincent, 29, all of Rivers, Man., were killed in a two-car collision near Rivers about 25 miles northwest of Brandon. Three others were sent to hospital.

Manitoba's other fatality occurred Saturday afternoon when Laurie Gott, 13, of the Shoal Lake Indian reserve was killed while hunting near Shoal River in east-central Manitoba. The boy died when a gun being carried by a companion accidentally discharged.

In Alberta, Malton and Wilford Gransick, aged 17 and 15 respectively, both of Hayter were killed in a car-train collision near Provost in east-central Alberta. A third youth was injured.

Alberta's other fatality occurred early Sunday when a 21-year-old Edmonton woman died in a fire that destroyed a single-storey home in the city. Her name was not released.

Anti-War Rally

SASKATOON (CP)—About 80 persons attended a regional anti-war rally—one of four across Canada during the weekend—at the University of Saskatchewan campus Sunday to "plan a spring offensive against American involvement in the war in Indo-China."

The two-day workshop, sponsored by the Committee to End the War in Southeast Asia, was attended by activists from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The group is planning a protest action against British troops, who will be training this summer in the Suffield area of southeastern Alberta.

CATAPULTING Swede is Stig Ostling, who gives Russia's Igor Romichevski (6) a "back-rub" during today's Olympic hockey meeting in Sapporo, Japan. Ringsider is Sweden's Hakan Wickberg (10). Swedes also fared well on ice, rallying in third period to tie vaunted Russians 3-3.

Imlach Tactic Pays Off As Swedes Tie Russians

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Before the hockey championship round started, Billy Harris, coach of Sweden's national hockey team, said he was convinced his club could hold its own with the Russians, the defending Olympic champions.

After his team lost 5-1 to the Swedes, Murray Williamson, coach of the United States team said:

"We're a young team and we'll be back and ready for the Czechs on Monday."

So it was left up to the players on both teams to prove their coaches correct in Monday's hockey action at the Winter Olympic Games. And they did.

The Swedes spotted the Russians a two-goal lead and rallied for three goals in the third period to tie the Russians 3-3. Meanwhile, the Americans scored the biggest upset in the tournament by knocking off the highly-rated Czechs 5-1. The Russians and Swedes now are tied for first place, each with a win and a tie for three points in the six-country round-robin.

Finland won its first game by clouting Poland 5-1 in today's other game.

In consolation round play, West Germany scored their second win in as many tries by dumping Yugoslavia 6-2 and Japan and Switzerland battled to a 3-3 deadlock.

Harris. "We were down 6-1 at Goteborg, Sweden, and wound up losing only 7-4."

"It enabled us to use four lines. You notice we made several fast changes. The defencemen were told to go out and score goals."

"It gave the team a big lift and gave the forwards a rest. It's pretty hard keeping up with these Russians for three periods."

SETS ONE UP

While the defencemen did not score, Bergman did set up Palmqvist for the Swedes first goal at 2:18 of the third period to cut the Russian lead to 2-1.

Charlamov, a three-goal man for the Russians in their 9-3 win over Finland Saturday, made it 3-1 only 90 seconds later and it appeared the Swedish comeback would be short-lived.

But at 5:54, Inge Hammarstrom scored Sweden's second goal from 25 feet out and then 135 seconds later, Hakan Wickberg slapped home his own rebound to tie the score.

At times, the game was rough and at one point in the second period, both benches cleared to join a melee in the Russian zone. The event was precipitated by a minor penalty to Charlamov for spearing Sweden's Bert-Ola Nordlander. No serious damage was done in the outbreak and no penalties were assessed.

Bernard Russi, 23-year-old civil engineer and part-time movie stunt man, won the men's downhill gold medal over the tricky 1/4-mile Mount Eniwa course in 1:51.43. His Swiss countryman, Roland Collobin, won the silver and Heinrich Messner of Austria the bronze.

Czechoslovakia took a 1-0 lead at 4:32 of the first period on a power-play goal by Eduard Novak but before the period ended Keith Christianen slapped home Henry Boucha's rebound to tie score on an American power-play.

Second-period goals by Kevin Ahearn, Craig Sander and Frank Sanders put the Americans in front 4-1 and Ronald Naslund scored their fifth goal in the third period.

Lampo, the hottest shooter on the pro bowling tour, won his second tournament in three weeks Saturday with a 258 final-game in the $85,000 Mercury Cougar Open at San Jose, Calif.

The Endicott, N.Y., bowler started with a spare and then ran off six straight strikes to take a commanding lead over Don Glover of South Bend, Ind., in the last of four nationally-television matches.

Glover won $10,000 and a new car. Glover, who finished with a 224, received $6,000 for second place.

Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo shot a six-under-par 64 Sunday to win the Caracas Open golf tournament at the Valle Arriba Golf Club.

De Vicenzo, whose score set a course record, won by a wide margin over American John Cook. De Vicenzo had a 263 for the four-day event, while Cook finished at 273.

Hockey on the Rocks

SPORTS SHORTS

(Times News Services) Hockey on the rocks leaves a bad taste in Emile Francis' mouth and he doesn't mind letting his bosses know about it.

"I've seen better ice on roads in Saskatchewan," Francis fumed after his New York Rangers blew a two-goal lead in the third period and settled for a 2-1 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs in Sunday's televised National Hockey League game at New York.

"I'm really amazed that both teams were able to play as well as they did on that crap. It's disgrace to have to play a hockey game on that kind of crap and it's nobody's fault but ours right here."

The target of Francis' wrath was the Madison Square Garden hierarchy — "I've got a pretty good idea who it is; but I don't want to say" — which insists on melting the ice for other events, such as Saturday night's pro basketball game, and freezing a new surface afterwards.

"We've got the worst ice in the league," Francis continued. "I don't believe that we can send people to the moon and we can't find a way to insulate this building."

SOCER OFFICIAL DIES AFTER ATTACK BY TEAM

CORDOBA, Argentina (Reuters) — Police arrested all 11 members of an amateur football team here after a linesman was kicked to death Saturday in midfield brawl.

The linesman, Agustin Bazzini, was killed when he raced on to the pitch to aid referee Oscar Frago, under attack from members of the Sportivo rural team.

Reporters said the fighting flared after one of the Sportivo players was ordered off during the match with local rivals Belgrano. Police moved in and held the entire Sportivo team for questioning.

Bazzini was kicked and punched several times, spectators said. He was knocked unconscious and died a few minutes later despite attempts to revive him by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Neither of the teams involved belongs to any of Argentina's major leagues.

"I was starting to wonder if it'd ever happen to me."

SHOOTS EIGHT UNDER

Jones fashioned an eight-under-par 64 in the final round to catch the front-runner Murphy with a 72-hole total of 274, 14, under par on the 7,122-yard Waialae Country Club course.

Both Jones and Murphy, who had a final-round 69, reached the green in two on the first playoff hole. The red-haired Murphy lagged up a long putt to about two feet away. Jones missed from 30 feet.

Then Murphy failed on the short putt and his husky shoulders slumped in dejection.

Jones faced one of about the same length.

"I said to myself, it's two feet. You don't want to waste all those years of hard work on a two-foot putt," Jones said. He rolled it in.

Murphy settled for $22,800 from the total purse of $200,000.

Masters champion Charles Coody took third with a 68 for 275, one stroke back. He missed badly on a long birdie putt on the final hole that would have put him in the playoff.

Behind him came Marty Fleckman at 276, Don Bieg at 277 and five more at 278. They were Bob Rosburg, John Schlee, Jim Jamieson, Bunki Henry and Curtis Sifford.

Lee Trevino shot a final-round 70 for 279. He was tied at that figure with Arnold Palmer, who closed with a 66. Jack Nicklaus, never really a factor in the event, was far back at 285.

Western Welcome won the $57,600 San Pasqual Handicap at Santa Anita race track at Arcadia, Calif., Saturday as Cougar II, the odds-on favorite, ran an erratic weaving path and was too late with his finishing burst.

Laffit Pincay held Western Welcome just off the lead until the stretch, when the five-year-old horse drove past Indulito and Star of Kuwait and won by 1½ lengths.

Cougar II, a 1-to-2 choice

despite high weight of 128 pounds, had to be steadied by Bill Shoemaker on the first turn, then went outside, raced wide around the stretch turn while moving up from the rear of the pack, then finally ducked to the inside in mid-stretch.

Shoemaker straightened Cougar out in time to nip longshot Star of Kuwait for second place.

Real Note won his fourth straight race over the Liberty Bell course. He covered the 1½-mile run by four-year-olds and up in 1:52 1-5.

Beaukins made a late bid to salvage second, 1½ lengths ahead of Crak Ruler.

Getting a Volkswagen means giving up a few extras.

With a Volkswagen, you aren't likely to get stuck with the optional equipment shown below, because a Volkswagen isn't likely to get stuck.

It has an air-cooled engine mounted right over the back wheels (the ones that drive the car so you can drive the car in snow, mud, or slush, and get somewhere).

And because it's cooled by air, not water, it doesn't have a radiator to freeze up. ISO, it goes without saying that it goes without anti-freeze, hoses, rod flush or rust inhibitors.

The extras you do get on a VW, you get at no extra cost. Important things like a carburetor de-icer to make sure it won't stall in cold weather. A specially coated, solid sheet of steel that seals the bottom against dirt, salt, sticks and stones. And four coats of paint everywhere to fight rust everywhere. (Which is why a Volkswagen looks as good in the Spring as it did in the Fall.)

Of course, there are some extras you can't get on a VW. (Things like push-button windows, push-button antennas or push-button seats.) But when you think about it, not having all those buttons to push in a Volkswagen isn't all that bad. Not when you consider that you likely won't have to push the Volkswagen.

Stiff Competition for Space at Sooke Wharf.

Fish Firm Holds Key to Wharf Work

Development of wharfage facilities in Sooke Harbor may depend largely on the plans of the Canadian Fishing Co., a department of transport official said today.

District manager Larry Slaght and other officials are studying a brief compiled by the Sooke-Jordan River Chamber of Commerce.

The brief deplores the lack of adequate wharfage for commercial fishermen using the area.

Slaght said the recommendations of his department will be greatly affected by the CFC plans for the Sooke area.

The future plan of the Canadian Fishing Co. is a key factor," he said.

The company operates its Maple Avenue base only during the summer months, providing what a company spokesman terms a "pickup service."

The spokesman said he was not in a position to say whether the Sooke operation would be expanded.

Slaght said that expansion of CFC's Sooke operation would probably result in more Steveston and Vancouver fishermen using Sooke Harbor as their "home port."

The two 100-foot government fingers at Sooke can only accommodate shallow draft vessels, such as pleasure craft.

Fishing vessels have to tie up at the unloading and loading berth because of shortage of space.

The brief states that about 60 fishermen in the area have to compete for space. The situation, it states, has worsened because private wharfage in the harbor, formerly used by fishermen, has deteriorated to the state where it has been condemned by the owner.

The brief asked the department to repair, enlarge and improve the existing facilities at the government wharf and stress the revenue brought into the area by the fishing industry.

Slaght said that after his department has made a complete study of the situation a report and recommendations will be made to the department of public works' office in Vancouver.

The department of public works is responsible for the building and repairing of government wharves.

"Once we've made our recommendations they will probably set up a program."

TENANTS TO LOBBY MEMBERS

Representatives of tenants' organizations from several cities on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland will lobby MLAs and cabinet ministers at the legislature next Monday.

The B.C. Tenants Organization said today the delegates will be seeking support for their argument that there should be changes in both the Landlord and Tenant Act and the Municipal Act.

The legislation should be changed to give tenants just cause for evictions, some form of rent justification, the right to vote on money bylaws and equal status of voters' lists with homeowners, the organization says.

Canada Next For 'Scope

Periscope-type mirrors for automobiles will likely become mandatory on Canadian cars if they are as effective as claimed, B.C. motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield said today.

Hadfield was commenting on a report from Washington which said the periscope mirrors will replace conventional rear-view mirrors in cars within four years under new U.S. government safety standards.

The periscope mirror gets rid of troublesome blind spots in a driver's field of vision. Present mirrors, interior and exterior models, give a 30-degree sweep of vision. The proposed mirror system will give an 80-degree field.

Estimated cost to the consumer would be about $25. The cost would be more but for the savings gained by elimination of the present mirror system on cars.

Pay Later Parks Plan Suggested

By CLEMENT CHAPPLER Times Staff

Ald. Clyde Savage said today he will press for a buy-now, pay-later plan for park acquisition in the Capital Regional District.

Savage said the cost of parks would be more equitably distributed if payments are made over 20 or 30 years by citizens using the parks between now and then.

Changing to long-term financing would require amendments to the regional board's spending powers, which would need permission from the provincial government.

Savage said the government's budget announcement of a new program to create green belts indicates the province might be agreeable.

Premier Bennett announced establishment of a $25 million fund to preserve green belts in the province, but the legislation does not specify any particular areas under consideration.

CITY-OWNED

Savage said he is not thinking only of Island View Beach. Thetis Lake Park, at present owned by the city of Victoria, a portion of land at Whitty's Lagoon, and a parcel at East Sooke, were all areas the region wants to buy, he said.

Island View Beach is 10 minutes from Victoria by car and is one of the few peninsula beaches without pollution warnings posted.

72 Years of Service family

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

An organization born into the Canadian scene back in 1900, and that has succeeded in maintaining a record of outstanding service throughout the years since it was founded, deserves a special accolade on its 72nd birthday.

I'm talking of the I.O.D.E., founded on February 13, 1900, in Montreal, and now with members in every province and territory and an enviable record of service to Canada and to Canadians.

Mrs. J. Clark Murray was founder of the order. Travelling in England at outbreak of the Boer war she was startled at the fact that a majority of women there were quite unfamiliar with Canada or its people.

This she felt was extremely unfortunate to both the British and the Canadians and she returned to Canada resolved to form an organization on the home front where women who were anxious to help in the war effort would have ample opportunity.

She contacted mayors of capital cities across the country requesting that they call together prominent women of their communities to organize Daughters of the Empire "societies."

60th Year

In 1971 this national organization spent a total of $331,109 on education, through scholarships, bursaries, grants and loans to students at the secondary, post-secondary and university level.

As it happens Victoria Municipal Chapter of the I.O.D.E. is also marking an anniversary this year — a 60th.

It was organized on July 9, 1912, at a meeting in the Alexandra Club on Courtney Street (now headquarters for the RCMP) to co-ordinate work of primary and junior chapters in the city.

Mrs. Henry Craft (one of eight Robert Dunsmuir daughters) was named first regent. Primary chapters were Camosun, Gonzales, Lahey, Douglas, Florence Nightingale and the junior Coronation Daisy Chain, now John Hebborn Gillespie Chapter.

First Chapter

As a consequence, women in various provinces became interested and within a short time word came from New Brunswick that a chapter had been formed in Fredericton on January 15, 1900 — the first in Canada. A month later a national organization was founded in Montreal.

Since inspiration for the whole idea sprang from the exigencies of war, first efforts of the women naturally were along the lines of comforts for soldiers in South Africa and for men of the Royal Navy.

When the war ended members turned their attention to raising money for the erection of monuments in memory of historic events, care of soldiers' graves, assistance in establishing and maintaining tubercular sanatoria and various other forms of social service.

Full Share

As Canada progressed and became a fully independent member of the Commonwealth of Nations, so the I.O.D.E. progressed and streamlined its aims and objectives to assume a full share in national life and the progress of the country.

Today, included in its many worthwhile services across Canada, the I.O.D.E. promotes good citizenship, participates in plans to combat pollution, works with the Indians and assists with youth travel and exchange programs.

Recently it supplied building

Special Projects

Present regent, Mrs. A. J.

T. Laundry, points with pride on special projects in the Victoria area, during the last decade, including a water garden for the blind at the Humboldt Street housing development, a $1,000 cheque for special electrical therapy equipment at George Pearkes Clinic, a viewing shelter on Dallas Road at Clover Point, assistance in refurbishing waiting rooms at the Jubilee Hospital cancer clinic and the continuing work of helping needy citizens referred to the chapter by social welfare departments.

To mark both these important I.O.D.E. anniversaries, Victoria Municipal Chapter is sponsoring a birthday tea next Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m., in historic Craigdarroch Castle, once the home of the Dunsmuir family which is being restored as an outstanding pioneer mansion.

Artist Dies

EDMONTON (CP) — Mary Catherine Mackintosh who painted with oil until she was into her 90s, has died at the age of 101.

Mrs. Mackintosh was fluent in several languages, sang and played the piano and wrote short stories for small newspapers. She was the oldest member of the Women's Canadian Club.

How Not to Break Your Diet Plans

This is the 13th in a series of 18 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of Why Grow Old? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When a woman is sunk in the bog of overweight it usually takes some strong activation to free her. She may have been planning to lose for years but did nothing about it until a doctor told her she must "or else". Falling in love will do it, or the demands of a career or the wish to be attractive for a charming husband.

Perhaps motivation does not have to be that important. Maybe just the memory of how miserable and frustrating it was to shop for clothes last spring and the knowledge that she can lose from 15 to 20 pounds in the next eight weeks is enough.

Those of you who started at the beginning of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan are now at the halfway point in this course. Most of you have lost between eight and 10 pounds. If you have not lost that much do not be discouraged. The rate at which women reduce varies greatly, depending on their metabolism and physical activity. Continue with your calorie counting and exercise.

This is the time, though, to stop and look back over the last four weeks. Try to discover why you have not accomplished what you should have. In every reducer's life there are times of special temptation. Giving in to one of these can ruin your chances for success. Once you recognize them you can brace yourself against them.

For some women this comes when sitting with the family in the evening watching TV. Reinforce your will-power with low calorie soft drinks and raw vegetables sprinkled with seasoned salt. Maybe you get along splendidly during the day but cannot watch your family eat what you should not have without indulging. Then eat by yourself for a couple of weeks.

Weekends may be calorie traps for you. Beware of them. You can allow yourself a little leeway, but not much, and make up for it before and after. Some women eat enough during a weekend to cancel out six days of serious dieting.

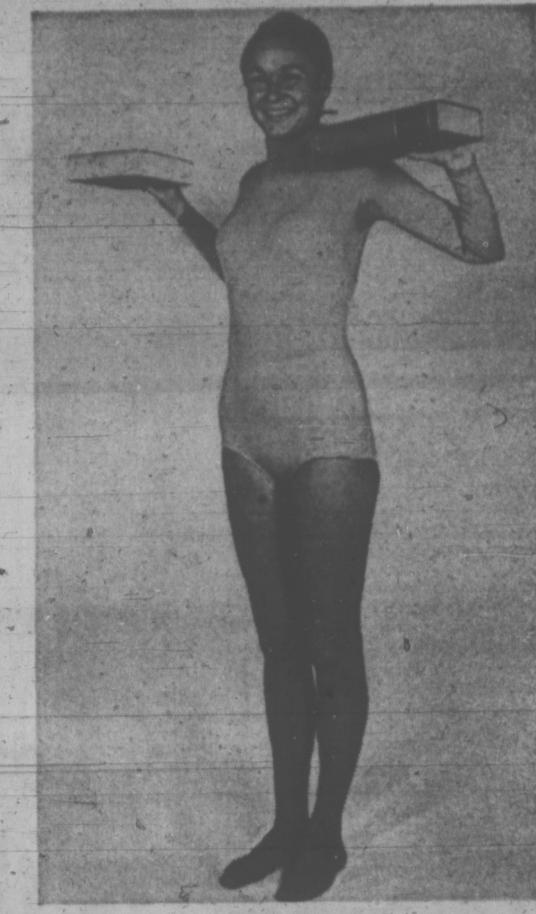

I think many women "break over" on their diet when they are worried or just plain bored. Be active. Keep busy. At times like this put on a record or turn on the radio and dance, or even better, get out of the house for a brisk walk. You will have forgotten your craving by the time you return home, and maybe your worry will not seem so bad either.

Of course social life presents a problem but you can take small helpings, no seconds, no gravy, only one roll, and go easy on dessert without being rude. Actually you can enjoy some of the rich items once in a while if you diet the day before and the day after a party.

Cope with it day by day and you will win. You probably know that alcoholics anonymous think only in terms of the present 24 hours. Think to yourself, "I will not eat more than I am allowed during this 24 hours." Some of you have not yet reached the half-way point in BIP. Remember this advice when you do.

Are you missing the fun? It is not too late to join thousands of other women in the adventure of self-improvement if you wish to. Do you want to lose from 15 to 20 pounds in the next eight weeks, or bring your measurements into lovelier ration, and look and feel younger? If so you may want my BIP kit which gives you complete directions, a calorie chart, menus with calories counted for 14 days, champion exercises and a chart on which you can watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops.

If you would like to have this kit send $5 cents (includes postage and handling) and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of Victoria Times, 2631 Douglas Street, Victoria, B.C.

For increasing the bust measurement stand tall. Take a fairly heavy book in each hand and extend your arms forward at shoulder height and shoulder width apart. Now bend your elbows and pull them back as far as you can. Again extend your arms forward and continue slowly bending and straightening the arms.

Right Time, Place For Everything

DEAR ABBY: Do you know anything about jaguars? We just got one for a pet and he is a very lovable cat. We wanted to mate him, so we borrowed a female jaguar for that purpose. We put them together and he wouldn't have a thing to do with her. She didn't seem to have any interest in him, either, but I think if he had romanced her a little, she might have cooperated.

DEAR ABBY: Whoever said that all the telephone chief operators are MALES is wrong!

I am a telephone operator and all the chief operators I know are WOMEN.

I wish the chief operators WERE men because I would rather work for a man than a woman. Also, I'd bet no man would take the foul language we women operators take from the customers. — Female.

DEAR SERIOUS: I asked one of the finest vets in the profession and he didn't laugh. Instead he told me that unless the female is "in heat," the male will have nothing to do with her. And she could also care less about him. Also,

she will make you free.

Marriage in China: Stable, Healthy Union

Women in modern China have gained tremendous ground since their liberation in 1949. Following is the second of three articles on the new role and position of the Chinese woman, written by Joyce Marvin, 24, a social worker in Vancouver's YWCA, who recently visited the country.

By JOYCE MARVIN
Special to the Times

I shall call her Wang-Lu.

She is a very attractive 27-year-old guide who is fluent in English and who is a worker in the Friendship Association in Shanghai. A constant companion through our week-long tour of Shanghai communes, factories and schools, Wang-Lu most patiently answered my innumerable queries about her own and other women's existence in the new China.

On one level, her story is a very personal account; on another, it sheds much insight into some of the perceptions and attitudes of the Chinese woman herself.

Chosen for her ability, intelligence and political commitment by the members of the street committee, or the local neighborhood council in her area, to continue her education at the Foreign Languages Institute in Shanghai, Wang-Lu began her study of English just prior to the very turbulent period of the Cultural Revolution.

During that time, Wang-Lu became a Red Guard and staunchly devoted herself to the struggle for the ascendancy of the "Maoist" as opposed to the revisionist or pro-capitalist political line.

Personal Discussion 'Vain'

Personal discussion or exposing herself on an individual level was generally shunned by Wang-Lu, as vain or immodest and not in keeping with integration of the individual and the collectivity; yet in relation to her experience as a Red Guard, she was most enthusiastic and vocal.

With eyes shining and with animated gestures, she described her inner feelings of strength, pride and exuberance as she, with hundreds of thousands of other Red Guards marched into Tien An Men Square in Peking to be greeted by Chairman Mao during the Cultural Revolution.

She talked too of the fear and apprehension she experienced as she and a girl friend, stimulated by the Chairman's suggestions that the young learn about their country through travel, hiked miles through forests and over mountains both day and night to reach Yanan, the historic revolutionary site of the end of the Long March. And she talked too of the comfort and courage that she received from simply reading and studying the works of Chairman Mao in such moments of anxiety.

Wang-Lu, a committed and vital revolutionary woman, is planning to marry a fellow worker at the Friendship Association in Shanghai within a year's time.

Introduced through comrades at work the couple has courted for approximately three years. In line with the new Chinese concepts of womanhood and hence of marriage as a vital form of friendship and companionship between man and woman, courtship is often of several years duration before marriage is formalized.

As Wang-Lu explained: "We want to know and to understand each other, to have similar political consciousness and awareness."

Courtship Still Traditional

What likely transpired in the three-year courtship still bears some resemblance to older, more traditional Chinese practice.

When a young man or woman reach the age where they begin to become concerned with marital prospects, subtle cues to that effect are given to friends and family who in turn will finally introduce the individual to possible mates. It is rare, we were told, that a couple, who had not had a formal introduction by friends or family or workmates, would begin courting.

What this practice means in reality is that courtship generally begins four or five years prior to marriage which ideally is 25 for women and 30 for men. Variations do occur, however, particularly in the rural areas where marital age is usually much younger.

Learn About Stock Exchange

By HARRIET HÄRT.

Have you been wondering what is happening on the trading floor at the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges? The best way to find out is to visit an exchange. The next best thing is to read this 12-page booklet.

It is a vivid description of what the goings on mean and what you would see if you were in the visitor's gallery at the sound of the opening bell.

The booklet explains the bee-hive activity, the shouting and seeming bedlam on the floor and makes everything sound much less confusing.

If you want to know how stocks are traded, read A Visit to the Stock Exchange (One

Modern Room Divider Serves Two Purposes

By PAULINE GRAVES

Dividers earn their keep. Taking the place of walls, they separate room areas, but leave enough openness that rooms flow together. By not affecting a complete separation, dividers make rooms seem larger than they are relatively unseen.

Here's a divider, however, between living room and dining area, that doubles up on functions. It was designed by Abraham Shapiro, AIA. The open quality is there, with shelves and cabinets spaced well apart and not reaching the ceiling. The cabinets house high-fidelity equipment as well as a record player. There's even additional storage, drawers for record albums, and cupboards for miscellaneous items.

Supporting posts, of three-by-sixes, painted white, vanish against white walls in the background, so that the walnut becomes most important.

Just One Problem

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Brimmer, B. J., is a natural for the United States Naval Academy — born of navy parents, young, healthy and eager to don the blues of a midshipman.

Just one problem. Brimmer, B.J., is a girl — 103 pounds of girl well distributed on a five-foot-three frame.

"I've always had a feeling for the navy," says Barbara Jo Brimmer, who is determined to shatter a 127-year-old tradition and become the first woman at Annapolis.

Her sponsor, Senator Jacob Javits of New York, is equally determined. Javits has said he will seek congressional sanction for Barbara Jo's entry to the Naval Academy if Navy Secretary John H. Chafee turns down the pretty 17-year-old from Staatsburg.

Two Toronto Girls Die Under Slide

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two 11-year-old girls, best friends who were spending the weekend together, went tobogganing Saturday afternoon in a Toronto ravine and didn't come home for dinner.

Their bodies were found more than 24 hours later under a snowdrift by some of the 250 volunteers who offered to help their parents hunt.

Jayne MacGregor and Marlene Telbe were among the 35 Canadians who died in accidents during the weekend.

Among the 35 persons killed accidentally on the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed 16 had died as a result of fires, one of the worst fire-death records in recent years.

It was one of the rare weekends when deaths by fire exceeded those from traffic accidents.

La Presse Battle Ends With Contract Accepted

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of 11 unions voted Sunday to accept contract settlements reached in extended negotiations which resumed in late December.

The contract for journalists and other support personnel in the editorial department is of two years duration and is retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Antoine Desroches, managing editor, said he was not speaking for the management as a whole, but the paper probably would be on the streets by Thursday.

The first employees were to return to work at 4 p.m. EST today after a march from east-central Montreal.

La Presse, North America's largest French-language daily, had a circulation of 225,000 when trouble started in mid-1971.

PACK FOR TWO YEARS

Members of six unions affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor and five affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions voted Sunday to accept settlements reached in extended negotiations which resumed in late December.

The contract for journalists and other support personnel in the editorial department is of two years duration and is retroactive to last Jan. 1.

It provides for increases of $15 for the first year, $15 for the first half of the second year and $4 for the last half of the second year.

A reporter with five years experience is to receive a basic salary of $187 a week at the start of the new contract.

In addition, journalists are to receive the equivalent of 32 days in back pay as compensation for part of the time they were unemployed during the lockout. Employees in other unions are to receive similar compensations.

"We didn't get all we wanted, but the settlement is satisfactory and we consider it a fairly important victory," Michael Lord, journalists' union president said.

Major provisions in the settlement include:

—All contracts for union employees to expire at the same time, Dec. 31, 1973;

—Job security for employees whose jobs are disrupted by changes in technology or operating procedures;

—A management promise of no reprisals and no further court action against employees charged with various offences in connection with the dispute;

—Parity committees of journalists and management as well as an arbitration procedure to deal with professional disputes such as censorship and editing.

MARKED BY VIOLENCE

The dispute prompted formation of a common union front, a demonstration by 8,000 persons Oct. 29 in which 160 persons were injured and the wife of a CBC reporter died of an asthma attack, a mass union rally of more than 10,000 persons a few days later, pleas from Premier Robert Bourassa and intervention by the Quebec labour department whose compromise proposals were subsequently rejected.

Sporadic violence, including a brawl caused by intruders at a banquet for the newspaper's supervisory personnel and several minor bombings, as well as bitter criticism of Paul Desmarais, owner of the newspaper and also president of Power Corp. of Canada, punctuated the conflict.

Bangladesh Gets $14M Indian Aid

CALCUTTA (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India handed over $14.7 million in aid today to Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh to meet immediate and pressing needs of the new country.

The gifts included 50 jeeps, 136 ambulances and 800 trucks. Each truck contained 200 bags of powdered milk.

Formal presentation followed the second round of talks between the two prime ministers in the governor's palace. Sheikh Mujib arrived in Calcutta Sunday for a two-day visit with Mrs. Gandhi.

India agreed earlier to give Bangladesh $33.3 million in urgently-needed items and to lend the equivalent of $18 million in sterling foreign exchange.

Sheik Mujib today in various forms for the reconstruction of Bangladesh.

In Dacca, Mujib's capital, an official source said more than 1,000 weapons have been found in buried caches in the suburb of Mirpur, which is populated by members of the Bihari minority. The official said Pakistani soldiers apparently buried the weapons so they could be used by the Biharis to harass the Bangladeshi authorities and create disturbances.

About 1,000 Bihari men from the area have been interned in Dacca's central jail, and almost 3,000 Bihari women, children and old people have been put in an isolated concentration camp 18 miles from the city.

Mirpur houses an estimated 300,000 Biharis. Many came from other sections to escape persecution by the Bengali majority, who blame the Biharis for atrocities committed during the civil war.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The type of deceptive lead presented in today's deal has appeared in bridge books and bridge columns literally scores of times since it first made its appearance in the National Men's Team-of-Four Championships of 1950. Here is the original rendition, as it occurred, with the actual participants.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH	EAST
♦ J 6 3	♦ K
♦ 8 5
♦ Q 0 7
♦ K 9 5 4 2
WEST	SOUTH
♦ 10 9 5	♦ A 0 8 7 4 2
♦ A 7 4	♦ K 0 6
♦ 9 5 4 2	♦ J 8 3
♦ A 0 6	♦ J

The bidding:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 3 ♣ Pass

4 ♣ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♦.

Sitting South was John Gerber, of Houston, Tex. Gerber is famed not only for his invention of the Gerber Four-Club Siam Convention, but also for his bridge prowess. In the West seat was Howard Schenken who, for the past four decades, has been accepted as one of the world's greatest bridge players.

Against Gerber's four-spade contract Schenken opened the nine of spades — and Gerber went into a deep study.

After the play of the deal had been completed, Gerber stated that he had been quite skeptical about a player of Schenken's stature leading a singleton trump — but on the bidding it was by no means impossible. So Gerber decided to believe the lead: it was either a singleton or the top of the 9-5 doubleton; and East, therefore, held either the K-10 doubleton, or the tripleton K-10-5.

So up went dummy's jack of spades — and Schenken's trump 10 had just been promoted into a winner. With the subsequent loss of a club, a diamond, and a heart, Gerber's four-spade contract suffered a one-trick set.

It was Gerber's intention, of course, after the ace of trumps took East's king, to enter dummy and finesse a gainst East for the "marked" 10 of spades — although if East showed up with the doubleton K-10, the finesse against the 10 would be unnecessary.

Had Schenken not opened a trump originally, Gerber would have breezed in with his contract. Left to his own resources, he would surely led a low trump off dummy, intending to finesse his queen. As is evident, on this lead East would have been compelled to play the king — and the ace, queen, and jack would then have gathered in the adversely-held trumps.

But Schenken's "unnatural" lead of the spade nine resulted in declarer making an "unnatural" play — and provided bridge writers with a classic deal.

How old, then?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Cheque for $45.87.

Elk Elusive

EDMONTON (CP) —

Rounding up surplus elk at Elk Island national park just east of here has been a problem, park superintendent Don McMillan said.

The surplus animals — about 150 of them — are to be transferred to the Clear Hills, Alta., area, northwest of Peace River where they will become breeding stock. McMillan said only 10 of the animals have been caught so far. They can jump an eight-foot fence.

Ship Out of Danger After Striking Reef

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Taxila, a 9,000-ton freighter registered in Pakistan, was reported in no danger Sunday after striking a reef south of this community.

A spokesman for Search and Rescue said the freighter, carrying a cargo of pulp from Prince Rupert, was punctured by the reef and was losing some oil, but tugs were containing the spilled oil with logs.

The Taxila was anchored off Kinnahan Island and divers were to inspect the hull for damage. The vessel was then expected to proceed to Vancouver for repairs.

No injuries were reported in the incident.

Bridge Smash-Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trans-Canada Highway traffic was disrupted for more than an hour Sunday when 10 cars smashed together in a chain reaction pileup on the Port Mann bridge, spanning the Fraser River 15 miles east of the city.

There were no serious injuries, but several persons were treated for minor cuts and bruises.

The pileup occurred in the eastbound lane of the four-lane bridge after a car stalled. Police said the situation became further tangled when a car attempted to change lanes and was struck broadside.

There was no estimate of damage, but it was expected to run into the thousands of dollars.

Weekend Road Toll

At least three persons were killed in weekend accidents in British Columbia, all on the highways.

Albanii Gordon Gauthier, 19, of Abbotsford was killed when his car rolled over about three miles east of Abbotsford. Brian Raymond Mason, 32, of Chilliwack died in a similar one-car accident about 20 miles to the west, near Langley.

A three-car accident about eight miles east of Prince

Poor Attack Civic Head In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city organization of poor people rapped Vancouver welfare head Walter Boyd Friday for "juggling with figures" in a report on poverty payments.

The attack came from the British Columbia Federation of Citizens, an organization which said it represents 85 poverty and self-help groups in the city.

Boyd had suggested ways of reforming welfare payments.

Margaret Mitchell, an executive member of the federation, said Boyd's proposals, which included increased straight welfare payment but elimination of extra money now supplied occasionally on request for clothing or extra food, would mean poor people would be worse off than before.

Federation members travelled to Victoria this week to present their own welfare reform proposals to the government. The proposals were not released.

Lawyers Ask A-G's Help

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — The Law Society of British Columbia asked Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Friday to make it compulsory for all lawyers in the province to place their trust funds in interest-bearing accounts for the benefit of the law foundation.

The 1970 session of the legislature established the law foundation to finance public legal programs. Membership is on a voluntary basis.

Pressure to make the change to a compulsory basis has come mainly from lawyers in small towns because they fear they may be discriminated against by local bankers if they place the funds in interest-bearing accounts.

At present, the banks have free use of the money in the non-interest-bearing trust accounts. It is a principle of legal ethics that a lawyer cannot benefit from the interest on his clients' funds.

Ken Meredith, a governor of the foundation, said the fund could reach $1 million in one year if membership were compulsory.

Students Riot

VALENCIA (AP) — Students and police clashed Friday in Valencia in one of the worst riots on Spain's troubled campuses in recent weeks. Seven policemen were injured and 67 students arrested, the news agency Europa Press said.

IWA Seeking $1 Hour Hike

The International Woodworkers of America will seek an across-the-board wage increase of $1 an hour in negotiations with the coast forest industry.

The wage proposal was agreed to Sunday at the conclusion of the union's wage and contract conference in Vancouver.

Details of other proposals were to be made public late today.

The proposed wage increase represents a 26.8 per cent hike, raising the base rate to $4.72 an hour.

The industry's chief negotiator, John Billings of Forest Industrial Relations, said he would make no statement until he sees the full contract proposals.

The current contract, which covers 29,000 workers and more than 100 companies, expires June 15. It covers workers in logging, sawmills, plywood mills and a number of other woodworking operations, but not pulp and paper mills.

The IWA has about 2,000 members on southern Vancouver Island, including B.C. Forest Products, the major private employer in Greater Victoria.

Bargaining Plan Vetoed

Education Minister Donald Brothers today rejected proposals for regional bargaining on teacher salaries made by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

BCSTA president Jack Smedley said he is disappointed with results of a 2½-hour meeting with Brothers and education department staff.

The association was seeking changes in proposed legislation requiring a referendum on teacher salaries which exceed provincial fixed guidelines currently set at 6.5 per cent.

The subcommittee rejected on a 5-to-3 vote emergency strike legislation requested by President Nixon.

Speedy End Near For Diet Pills?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. food and drug commissioner Charles C. Edwards hinted strongly today the government may be on the verge of banning widely popular diet pills as dangerous and virtually worthless.

"We're not sure any of these drugs are any good at treating obesity," Edwards said.

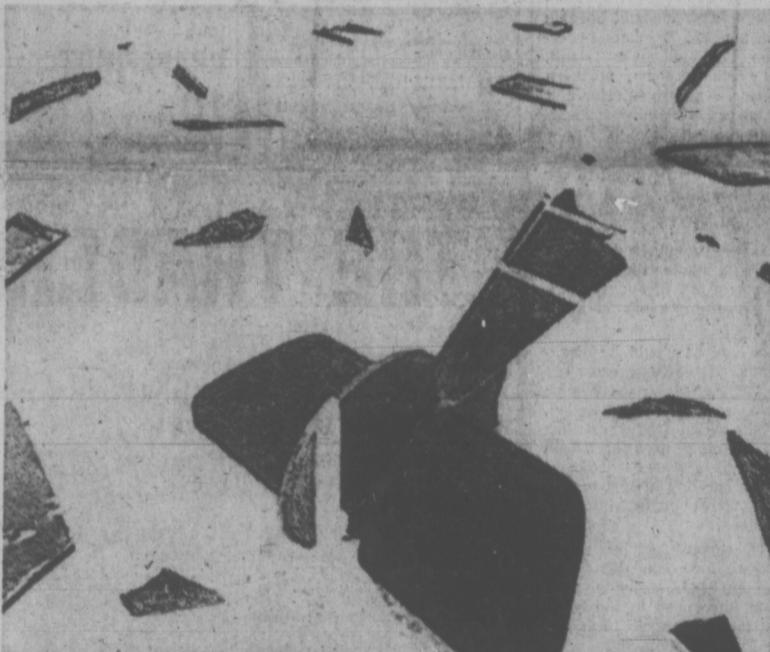

"Our approach may be to label the drug for short-term use in obesity only for those patients who do not respond to other treatment, and who do respond to this form of treatment during a short-term trial."

Although this attempt by Jerry Johnston to become a winged man on skis appears to end in utter disaster, it was still a victory of sorts. Stiff Competition for Space at Sooke Wharf

Fish Firm Holds Key to Wharf Work

Development of wharfage facilities in Sooke Harbor may depend largely on the plans of the Canadian Fishing Co., a department of transport official said today.

District manager Larry Slaght and other officials are studying a brief compiled by the Sooke-Jordan River Chamber of Commerce.

The brief deplores the lack of adequate wharfage for commercial fishermen using the area.

Slaght said the recommendations of his department will be greatly affected by the CFC plans for the Sooke area.

"The future plans of the Canadian Fishing Co. is a key factor," he said.

The company operates its Maple Avenue base only during the summer months, providing what a company spokesman terms a "pickup service."

The spokesman said he was not in a position to say whether the Sooke operation would be expanded.

Slaght said that expansion of CFC's Sooke operation would probably result in more Steveston and Vancouver fishermen using Sooke Harbor as their "home port."

The two 100-foot government fingers at Sooke can only accommodate shallow draft vessels, such as pleasure craft.

Fishing vessels have to tie up at the unloading and loading berth because of shortage of space.

The brief states that about 60 fishermen in the area have to compete for space. The situation, it states, has worsened because private wharfage in the harbor, formerly used by fishermen, has deteriorated to the state where it has been condemned by the owner.

The brief asked the department to repair, enlarge and improve the existing facilities at the government wharf and stresses the revenue brought into the area by the fishing industry.

Slaght said that after his department has made a complete study of the situation a report and recommendations will be made to the department of public works' office in Vancouver.

The department of public works is responsible for the building and repairing of government wharves.

"Once we've made our recommendations they will probably set up a program."

STREET BLOWS TOP FOR BANG-UP TIME

Government Street, or at least part of it, blew its top Sunday.

And if there happened to be a motorist in the immediate vicinity, he is probably still trying to get his heart back in the right place.

One of B.C. Hydro's low-pressure gas mains below Government near Discovery developed a leak, a spokesman said, and gas accumulated and then exploded.

The result was three manhole covers flying through the air.

The spokesman said no injuries resulted and there was no extensive damage to equipment, other than the manhole covers, which were destroyed.

It is believed the gas was ignited by an electric motor switch.

Rovers to Recruit

The Rovers, one of the oldest Boy Scout divisions in Canada, will launch an aggressive recruitment campaign.

The decision was made Sunday when 113 Rovers and leaders attended the annual B.C. conference in the Scout hall at Oak Bay.

The Rover movement is open to young men and women between the ages of 17 and 23.

School Radiation Devices Scheduled for Checkout

B.C.'s schools will be checked in the near future to determine if they are using devices which expose students to dangerous amounts of radiation.

Deputy education minister Joe Phillipson said the check will be made as a result of a directive from the federal health department, warning that students in some Ottawa schools were being exposed to high radiation levels from educational devices.

Phillipson said there is nothing to indicate that any B.C. equipment is exposing students to high levels of radiation.

But just in case, he said, schools will be checked.

Herring Fleet Stays Put

Resumption of herring fishing in British Columbia for the first time in four years is being delayed by a dispute between the Fishing Vessel Owners' Association of B.C. and the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

To combat this, Rover crews will concentrate on helping individual members, particularly with their academic and technical education aims.

They will also concentrate on introducing challenging programs.

Most of the 45 boats not owned by association members belong to fishing companies while half a dozen are owned by union members.

Union president Homer Stevens said the FVOA request was turned down because it would likely result in some union members being fired to make room for the owners.

The union would not mind what the owners did on their own vessels but resisted when the association wanted to put up to two members on every boat in the fleet, he said.

Frank Bubel, FVOA secretary-manager, said in the past some owners have been allowed to take out their own vessels. This year five applied to do so. This was at first turned down by the union but later accepted.

"So we can't leave them in jeopardy, so we know where we are at, we should be allowed the right of up to two on each boat," he said.

The periscope mirror gets rid of troublesome blind spots in a driver's field of vision. Present mirrors, interior and exterior models, give a 30-degree sweep of vision. The proposed mirror system will give an 80-degree field.

Estimated cost to the consumer would be about $25.

The cost would be more for the savings gained by elimination of the present mirror system on cars.

A Victoria physician says one reason doctors work long hours is they can't afford not to.

Money troubles in the highest income profession in the country?

This doctor says if he was to drop to an average work week, say 37½ hours, he would be left with about $4,000 for a year's work.

He's got the figures — many of them from the government — to prove it.

DOCTOR'S PROFILE

Since 1968 the Medical Services Commission, the provincial agency which administers medicare and therefore delivers to doctors most of their income, has been storing statistical data on every doctor in B.C. who practises on a fee-for-service basis.

The figures can be asssembled to provide a doctor with what is called his "profile," a numerical summary of his year's work in terms of such things as total patients seen, number of services performed, patients referred and fees paid.

What this doctor's profile doesn't show is that to earn his $32,383 in the last fiscal year he worked 70 hours a week directly tending his patients, was on call for an additional 45 to 50 hours a week (parts of which he was called out to work), did his books and committee work on top of this and averaged four hours work on his days off.

Doctors who work hours like these (he says many work longer) do so from a mixture of choice and necessity.

"The hard facts are," he says, "that if I wanted to work like anyone else I'd be in a lot of trouble."

The doctor's overhead — nurse's salary, office rent, equipment payments and supplies — totals $14,000 a year.

If he was able to trim his hours to the average work week he estimates he might be able to cut his overhead to $12,000. But his income would drop to about $16,000. That leaves $4,000. Before taxes.

The obvious conclusion: It's impossible for doctors to work an average work week on the fee-for-service basis. The alternative — doctors on salaries — would not only cost more but would require twice as many doctors.

"There's no way I'm going to run this hard and be a civil servant too," he says.

The profiles are interesting too because they provide a doctor with signposts on how hard, and how effectively, in terms of health care costs, he is working in comparison with similar doctors in similar practices.

ALL STUDIED

On each doctor's profile alongside his totals are the averages for his colleagues practising in the same medical field and geographic area.

The profile is a number of print-out sheets from the computers of the Medical Services Commission. Any doctor in practice can request his profile through the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, the doctor's licensing and disciplining body.

Both the commission and college study all profiles on the lookout for ones which deviate too much from the averages.

Load Limits Set On Rural Roads

Central Saanich is imposing vehicle weight restrictions on all but nine roads in the municipality because heavy damage to road surfaces is expected as the deep-frozen ground starts softening.

From 7 a.m. Tuesday until further notice all vehicles will be restricted to 70 per cent of their gross vehicle weight, municipal works superintendent Carl Britenbach said today.

Similar restrictions, but limiting vehicles to 50 per cent of their axle weight, have been set by the provincial highways department on East Sooke, Gillespie and Otter Point roads.

These take effect from midnight tonight, and a highways-department spokesman said the regulations are mainly directed at log-hauling operations.

"Depending on the weather and how the roads stand up we may have to extend the restrictions to other roads," he said.

Central Saanich roads exempt from the restrictions are Keating Cross Road, Merchant Road, Benvenuto Avenue, Brentwood Drive, Central Saanich Road, Saanich Cross Road, Tahmer Road, Island View Road and East Saanich Road.

With these access routes, Britenbach said, tandem-type vehicles would be able to leave part of their loads on unaffected roads while using those where the restrictions apply.

Britenbach said the measures are necessary because "excessive" damage is expected from frost penetration which in places is eight to 10 inches deep.

"We only get this kind of problem every 10 or 15 years," he said. "The roads had little protection from now cover and the frost really got down deep."

Road break-up problems are not expected in other Greater Victoria municipalities, although a Saanich official said a careful watch is being kept on roads in the northern part of the municipality.

Bob Allen, North Saanich public works superintendent, said "A lot of edges are starting to go," but added that as the municipality has no scales it is difficult to enforce weight restrictions.

"If the problem gets bad enough, though, we may have to," he said.

TENANTS TO LOBBY MEMBERS Pay Later Parks Plan Suggested

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

Ald. Clyde Savage said today he will press for a buy-now, pay-later plan for park acquisition in the Capital Regional District.

The present system of yearly allotments from the regional budget paying for park needs is inadequate and should be replaced by long-term borrowing, the Victoria alderman said.

Savage, a regional board director, said he will put the proposal to the board's executive.

ALREADY OWNED

The idea was partly prompted by an attempt in Central Saanich municipality to have the Island View Beach, already owned by the region, made more accessible.

Changing to long-term financing would require amendments to the regional board's spending powers, which would need permission from the provincial government.

Savage said the government's budget announcement of a new program to create green belts indicates the province might be agreeable.

Premier Bennett announced establishment of a $25 million fund to preserve green belts in the province, but the legislation does not specify any particular areas under consideration.

CITY-OWNED

Savage said he is not thinking only of Island View beach. Thetis Lake Park, at present owned by the city of Victoria, already owned by the region, a portion of land at Witty's Lagoon, and a parcel at East Sooke, were all areas the region wants to buy, he said.

Island View Beach is 10 minutes from Victoria by car and is one of the few peninsula beaches without pollution warnings posted.

Ask the Times

A. There are none on public sale, most of these songs being contained in anthological literature, such as Frances Densmore's Music of the Indians of British Columbia. This and other material can be seen at the Provincial Museum's department of Indian studies.

BIG SECRET

It appears from the profile prepared by the Medical Services Commission less than half of that was for doctors' fees.

"We don't know specifically what they're doing with the rest of the money," says the doctor whose profile set him thinking about this.

"Is more than half going on diagnostic tests? If so, and how, and who's ordering them? If not, where is it being spent?"

The government says it wants co-operation in cutting health care costs. We say we don't know where the money is being spent."

IWA Seeking $1 Hour Hike

The International Woodworkers of America will seek an across-the-board wage increase of $1 an hour in negotiations with the coast forest industry.

The wage proposal was agreed to Sunday at the conclusion of the union's wage and contract conference in Vancouver.

Details of other proposals were to be made public late today.

The proposed wage increase represents a 26.8 per cent hike; raising the base rate to $4.72 an hour.

The industry's chief negotiator, John Billing of Forest Industrial Relations, said he would make no statement until he sees the full contract proposals.

The current contract, which covers 29,000 workers and more than 100 companies, expires June 15. It covers workers in logging, sawmills, plywood mills and a number of other woodworking operations, but not pulp and paper mills.

The IWA has about 2,000 members on southern Vancouver Island, including B.C. Forest Products, the major private employer in Greater Victoria.

Bargaining Plan Vetoed

Education Minister Donald Brothers today rejected proposals for regional bargaining on teacher salaries made by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

BCSTA president Jack Smedley said he is disappointed with results of a 2½-hour meeting with Brothers and education department staff.

The association was seeking changes in proposed legislation requiring a referendum on teacher salaries which exceed provincial fixed guidelines, currently set at 6.5 per cent.

Smedley said his delegation outlined three alternatives to the government plan. These were:

- Separation of the province into five bargaining regions;
- Using the same regions with unresolved disputes settled by a government-appointed agency, either the B.C. Mediation Commission or some other new body;
- Regional bargaining within government-fixed guidelines.

Smedley said the BCSTA first proposed regional bargaining in 1970 and still believes it is the most sensible way to deal with rising education costs. But he said Brothers told the delegation the government does not intend to alter its position.

SENSIBLE WAY

"He is not prepared to change the legislation. He emphasized that he has the unqualified support of the public in this matter," Smedley said.

Smedley said the government would drop its plan for referendums on teacher salaries and try one of the three regional bargaining proposals outlined by the BCSTA. If they don't work, he said, then they could try the system they now are proposing.

But he said Brothers told them the government wants to give the referendum scheme a chance for at least one year and see what happens.

BCSTA believes weaknesses in the referendum proposal are so great they could completely confuse voters. Smedley said this is because Brothers would be deluged with a series of referendums and elections between December and April.

In December, they said, voters would elect trustees. Then in January they could conceivably have to vote on a teacher salary proposal, and later in the year vote on

Partial Injunction For Docks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House of Representatives labor subcommittee voted today to authorize a partial injunction against the United States West Coast dock strike.

The subcommittee voted 5 to 1 to allow a major part of the strike to continue but to allow a court, upon petition from the attorney-general, to halt strikes affecting shipment of military and agricultural cargoes and shipments to and from Hawaii.

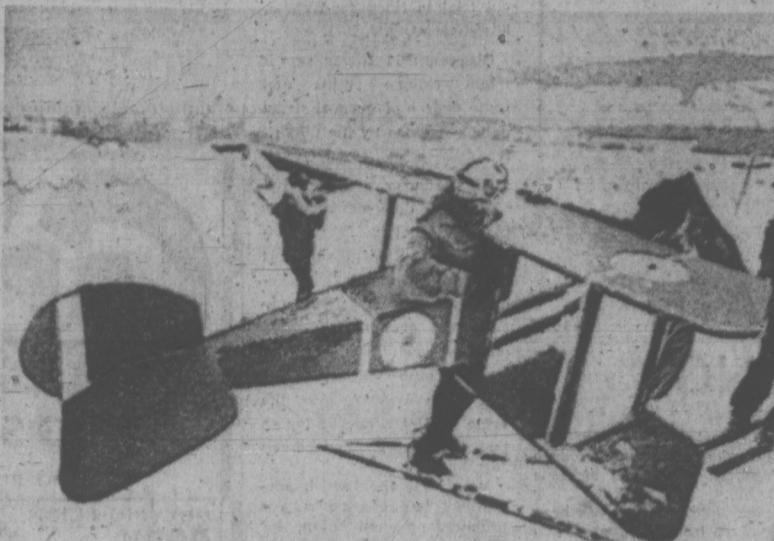

The subcommittee rejected on a 5-to-3 vote emergency strike legislation requested by President Nixon.

Speedy End Near For Diet Pills?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. food and drug commissioner Charles C. Edwards hinted strongly today the government may be on the verge of banning widely popular diet pills as dangerous and virtually worthless.

"We're not sure any of these drugs are any good at treating obesity," Edwards said.

"Our approach may be to label the drug for short-term use in obesity only for those patients who do not respond to other treatment, and who do respond to this form of treatment during a short-term trial."

Supervisors Man Prisons As Quebec Jailers Strike

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Quebec's 35 provincial prisons were manned by supervisory personnel today after guards walked out Sunday to protest lack of progress in contract talks with the provincial government.

The walkout, called for 6 p.m. Sunday at a day-long meeting of 800 members of the Provincial Peace Officers Association, spread quickly across the province.

Guards, joined by autoroute policemen, game wardens and highway inspectors, all association members, were streaming to this city, 75 miles east of Montreal.

By Sunday evening more than 1,500 men of the 2,500-member association were at a meeting hall here but a government spokesman said order was being maintained in the jails. A few guards did not join the strike.

Leopold Legros, president of the brotherhood of senior prison personnel, urged supervisory personnel to leave their posts and come to the Drummondville meeting. The guards earlier rejected his proposal that supervisors remain to insure minimum surveillance.

Most callers said they had heard about the disaster on radio.

A check showed that KPPC-TV in suburban Pasadena had just aired a two-hour simulated newscast depicting

But Pierre Gariepy, deputy director of Quebec prisons, said Sunday night that more than 90 per cent of supervisory personnel had remained on the job.

The walkout caused postponement of court appearances for detainees under provincial jurisdiction.

The association has been without a contract since the previous one expired last July and they charge the government has not been bargaining in good faith.

'Disruption' Wednesday For Ulster

Times News Services

BELFAST — Roman Catholic civil rights leaders today proclaimed Wednesday a "day of disruption" throughout Northern Ireland despite a police crackdown on leaders of Sunday's mammoth protest march by 20,000 persons in Newry.

"We are staying tight lipped about the actual organization," said a civil rights official in describing the projected 24-hour disruption which is to hit communities across Ulster.

"But we can say now that it will be non-violent and massive."

Speakers for security forces apparently shared the relief of the civil rights officials that violence had not occurred in the much-touted parade at Newry.

Predominantly Catholic and handicapped by what opposition leaders call the economic discrimination of the Ulster Unionist government, Newry provided the lead contingent of the quiet procession which filed down a circular route to the edge of town almost a mile from the nearest barricade thrown up by security forces.

Parade organizers looked delighted as they proudly spoke of having disapproved warnings by authorities that a peaceful parade in troubled Ulster was impossible.

Having staged the illegal march was the important thing, they said — a demonstration of the contempt in which the Catholic minority holds the Stormont system and its "repressive" laws.

Most speakers at the rally which climaxed the parade hailed the effectiveness of non-violent methods in pressuring the civil rights cause.

CHILDREN ABSENT

But MP Bernadette Devlin, now a heroine for the Ulster minority following her Jan. 31 assault against Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, told the rally, held in a muddy Newry Square, that violence can be justified as a weapon for equal rights in Ulster.

Police said today that more than 30 persons, including some members of both the British and Northern Ireland Parliaments, and leading members of the Civil Rights Association, will be prosecuted for taking part in the march Sunday. The prosecutions will not come as a surprise. Several members of Parliament supporting Sunday's march said in conversations to reporters that they expected to be prosecuted for taking part.

Participants in the Sunday procession — a thoroughly organized affair featuring men and women but no children — formed up in well-planned brigades near a municipal housing development on the western end of Newry.

Hundreds of stewards kept the procession tightly in formation while its chief organizers insisted at both the beginning and end of the demonstration that order must be kept so that no excuse could be given to the 1,700 British troops and 450 police for violence against the protesters.

The parade, mostly silent and led by men and women of the civil rights movement, avoided coming near the bar-

KAREN MAGNUSEN WINS SILVER MEDAL

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Karen Magnusen of Vancouver won Canada's first medal of the Winter Olympic Games, taking a silver in the women's figure skating. Beatrix Shuba of Austria, the world champion, won the gold and Janet Lynn of the United States, the bronze.

The 19-year-old Canadian girl, who may be Canada's only hope for a medal at the games, put on a strong free-skating performance to move from third place after the compulsory program to the runner-up position.

Miss Shuba was so far in front after the six compulsory school figures that there was little doubt she would win the Olympic title.

Family's Terror Ended by Arrest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen days of terror for a city businessman and his family ended Saturday with a cloak and dagger police operation and the arrest of a 19-year-old student.

Victim of an extortion bid was Alan M. Eyre, 48, president of a Vancouver automobile firm and a former president of the B.C. Lions football club.

The ordeal began Jan. 20 when Eyre received a letter demanding payment of $10,000.

Between the first letter and a hide-and-seek incident with a suspected extortionist around Stanley Park on Saturday, was a series of threatening letters, a phone call from the extortionist, and a series of notes instructing Eyre where to drop the money.

"You watch the exotic things they do on these detective stories on television, and you find them hard to believe," he said Sunday night. "Now I know they aren't so unbelievable after all."

Eyre said police equipped him with a walkie-talkie set on Saturday so he could be in contact with supporting police teams during the park hunt for the extortionist. He carried a paper bag containing $10,000 in cash.

Police in plainclothes and unmarked cars followed Eyre as he traced a string of notes instructing him to go from place to place in the park. Police eventually made an arrest.

"The extortionist's letters threatened all kinds of things against me, my family, our house, everything," Eyre said Sunday.

He said he and his wife were about to leave for the state ball marking the opening of the British Columbia legislature in Victoria when the first letter was received Jan. 20, and they cancelled the engagement.

His two teenage daughters remained indoors until the extortion threat was over.

Neil Lawrence Cowan, a second-year commerce student at the University of B.C., was charged Saturday with attempted extortion.

Airline Slowdown Likely in Strike

Ottawa (CP) — Unions and airlines spokesmen expect a slowdown in commercial air traffic as a result of a strike by 2,200 government employees.

Other electronics technicians working for the transport department service navigation and communications equipment for marine operations.

J. R. Campbell, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association, said yesterday the nationwide strike which began at 6 p.m. EST Sunday could eventually reduce the flow of air traffic by 60 per cent.

Hugh Riopelle, an Air Canada information officer, said the strike will cause delays, especially in out-of-country flights. But it would not totally disrupt service as did the recent air traffic controllers' strike.

Mr. Andreeff said picket lines have sprung up at major airports across the country.

Four days of negotiations, including a final burst of 36 hours, ended Sunday shortly after the strike began. But talks between the union and treasury board and mediator Gordon Simmons had been stalled at 1 p.m. EST.

About 800 of the 2,200 technicians on strike are involved in air operations. They are
